

The Esther Honey Foundation

The Esther Honey Foundation is an international organization working exclusively to control animal populations on South Pacific Islands. The difference that the foundation makes for animals and their communities can be permanent.

EHF works in unison with local government, businesses, community members and partners, to bring compassionate and affordable veterinary services to South Pacific island companion animals in need.

The foundation has developed partnership programs to raise funds and recruit volunteers to fulfill their mission of improving the health conditions and quality of life for island animals

All animals including the homeless, receive the same level of veterinary care and no healthy animal is euthanized.
